HISTORY

PUC-Campinas has 37 Colleges with 45 Undergraduate Courses and 5 Graduate programs with courses to Masters and Doctorate level. Our teachers are highly qualified. It has a complete infrastructure and a built area of 196,000 m2, spread over its three Campuses. In its 72 year history, it has graduated over a 140,000 students. However, its quality and not mere quantity is the best thing PUC-Campinas has to offer.

A structured, recognized and well known University, PUC-Campinas brings together all the best human and physical resources needed to provide a complete and fully rounded higher education, in line with current demands and focused on the challenges of the future.

To better fill market vacancies, PUC-Campinas guarantees excellent training that leads to positions of prominence and leadership within professional spheres, in addition to promoting knowledge and furthering social involvement.

PUC-Campinas is your first step towards the future - your future.

THE MISSION

“The Pontifical Catholic University of Campinas, based on the values of Christian ethics and considering the awareness and reality of the sociocultural characteristics that the mission has to produce, organize and socialize, by means of its teaching, research and scope, aims towards developing professional excellence, the complete education of the individual and to contribute to the construction of a fair and supportive society”.

CAMPUSES

On Campus I, the largest area of PUC-Campinas and where more than 50% of the University's students study, are located the dependencies of the Dean.

This land was donated by two sisters Vera and Ana Beatriz, daughters of Caio Pinto Guimarães an agricultural engineer and the former owner of Santa Cândida farm. Guimarães had a dream to build a university on the farm's prime location.

The construction of the buildings started in 1970. Three years later, the Institute of Arts, Communication and Tourism – IACT became operational and the Faculty of Physical Education – FAEFI. The Campus was inaugurated on the 15th March 1973.

Courses run at this location are part of the Centre for Economics and Administration – CEA -, the Centre for Exact Sciences, Technology and the Environment – CEATEC -, the Centre for Human and Applied Social Sciences (except Law) – CCHSA - and the Centre for Language and Communication – CLC.

CAMPUS I

CAMPUS II

AVENIDA JOHN BOYD DUNLOP
JARDIM IPAUSSURAMA
CAMPINAS – SP
CEP 13060-904
TELEFONE +55 19 3343-6800

Campus II is known as the “City of Health”, due to the fact that together in one place are the University Hospital and the Centre for Life Sciences Courses – CCV, composed of the Faculties for Biological Sciences, Pharmaceutical Sciences, Nursing, Physiotherapy, Speech Therapy, Medicine, Nutrition, Dentistry, Psychology and Occupational Therapy.

The Celso Pierro Maternity Hospital is a benchmark for Campinas and the region, it has hospital beds available for the use of the public Unified Health System (SUS) and for private partnerships and individuals, throughout the Inpatient Units and the Emergency Department for adults, pediatrics, gynaecology, obstetrics and orthopaedics, as well as adult, pediatrics, neonatal and coronary Intensive Care Units (UTIs).

CAMPUS CENTRAL

RUA MARECHAL DEODORO, N : 1099
CENTRO
CAMPINAS – SP
CEP 13010-920

The Central Campus is the birthsite of PUC-Campinas. The University was founded on this site in 1941. The building was the old Mansion House property of Joaquim Policarpo Aranha – Itapura Baron -, and its Patio of the Lions is a popular place for student gathering, parties and events.

In the Central Campus the Law Course is housed, within the Centre for Human and Applied Social Sciences – CCHSA.

The Library and Information System – SBI consists of five libraries, two in Campus I, one in Campus II, one in the Central Campus and another one in the Collage Application Pius XII directed at Primary and Secondary Education. Its equipment and collections are updated annually at the request of the faculties. In the library's collections are books, thesis and papers, as well as special items (such as brochures, CD's and DVD's), periodicals, rare works and special items.

GRADUATION: PROJECTS

PRACTICAL TRAINING

With Practical Training the student has the opportunity to undertake various activities that go beyond the classroom work, such as Photoshop, Corel Draw, cinema seminars, art workshops, sport and even visits to historic cities.

Practical Training is an integral and mandatory part of the Bachelor and Degree Courses of PUC-Campinas, as well as other course levels. The student can choose which activities they find more interesting and at a time convenient to them.

EDUCATION EVALUATION

For five years now, PUC-Campinas has been organizing, every six months, its Educational Evaluation – a process by which the students could express their opinions on the quality of the learning experience at the University. This is done by means of a questionnaire available from the Student Login Area (www.puc-campinas.edu.br).

The students' opinions are processed, analyzed and respected, often bringing major benefits in helping further improve the quality of education offered by PUC-Campinas.

The results of the questionnaires are sent to the directors of the Centres, to be discussed with Faculty directors and in meetings involving professors and students.

MONITORING OF ACADEMIC STUDENTS PROJECT - PAAA

The Monitoring of Academic Students Project – PAAA - helps to integrate the PUC-Campinas student into academic life, monitoring their course performance, attending to their needs and expectations, and assisting with their transition from the University to the world of work. The PAAA is divided into three stages, each of which has its specific objectives, all aimed at the complete education and support of the student.

COMMUNITY LEARNING PROGRAM - PROCAP

Consists of activities designed for all courses freshmen and its content is aimed at the development of academic areas such as Mathematics, Biology, Chemistry and Literature and the availability of practical support through the Virtual Learning Environment (AVA). This involves senior students of Undergrad and grad Courses with the monitoring of teachers.

SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH INITIATION PROGRAM

Scientific Research Initiation Program is the first step for the student in getting to know how to develop a research project. In PUC-Campinas, the Program offers two types of scholarships for Undergraduate students: Dean Scholarships/ FAPIC and PIBIC and PIBITI/CNPq scholarships, administered through the University under the supervision of CNPq, a federal agency. To participate in the program the student must be enrolled in a regular Undergraduation Course of PUC-Campinas, not be in employment, must not be linked to paid training, have completed the disciplines relevant to the execution of its IC Work Plan, have 20 hours per week to devote to research activities, be selected and appointed by a research professor, fulfill the plan of activities approved and finally analyze and present the results at the Annual Scientific Research Meeting sponsored by the University.

PIBITI

Institutional Scholarship Program for the Initiation and Development of Innovation and Technology - CNPq / MCTI

PIBIC

Programa Institucional de Bolsas de Iniciação Científica - CNPq / MCTI

CNPq

Institutional Scholarship Program for Scientific Research - CNPq / MCTI

FAPIC

FAPIC – Support fund for Scientific Research provided by the Dean of PUC-Campinas

INTERNSHIP

Non-mandatory internships are conducted through the many institutional partnerships both with private and public owned companies, allowing students to be exposed to their future professional environment. These activities are part of the course requirements to promote integration between theory and practice, to develop professional skills and to contribute to the development of citizenship.

At PUC-Campinas, Work towards Course Completion is different. Here it is the synthesis of a process of training towards undergraduation. The TCC provides the students with the opportunity of production orientated training via a combination of theory and practice.

TCC

MONITORING

Monitoring activities are undertaken to improve undergraduate education. This program encourages senior students to act as monitors for their colleagues, seeking to assist them in the subjects in which they have difficulties. Thus, the teaching-learning process becomes more dynamic with encouragement to promote and discuss new ways of sharing knowledge. Applications are semi-annual and monitors can be paid or be voluntary.

EXTENSION COURSES

Dozens of extension courses are available twice yearly through the University's portal (www.puc-campinas.edu.br). They are open to the entire community, independent of previous education.

EXCHANGE

For those interested in international exchange, PUC-Campinas has agreements with various educational institutions from abroad. The facilitator for international student experiences is the Department for External Relations – DRE, which promotes lectures, presentations, exhibitions, workshops, informing students about courses, programs and scholarships abroad.

The DRE also has responsibility for National and International Cooperation Projects for the University, whose purpose is to foster information exchange, furtherance of knowledge and encouraging the comprehensive education of students and teachers.

COMMUNITY

The University Museum of PUC-Campinas conducts cultural activities such as exhibitions and displays of its collection.

The Collection of the museum consists of five Thematic Collections: “Indigenous Ethnic Groups”, “Pre Industrial Japan”, “Archaeology”, “History of the PUC” and “Folklore and Popular Culture”. It features books, journals, magazines, videos, sound recordings, records and CD’s.

The museums Collection is currently stored in the Palace of Baron Itapura (Rua Marechal Deodoro, 1099 – Central Campus) and the Safety Area (Technical Reserve) of Campus I of the University, and is publicly available for visits and research.

HOSPITAL – SCHOOL

PUC-Campinas is one of the few Brazilian Universities that have a Teaching Hospital. The Celso Pierro Maternity & Hospital – HMCP, is sited on Campus II, and integrates the 10 Faculties of the Centre for Life Sciences, with the object of providing the best student practical education. It also has the feature of performing in very high level in its services, acting as an important benchmark for several health areas.

With over 30 years of existence and operation, the HMCP is a major project of the University, while at the same time it serves the population, the students and fulfills its mission to promote health and knowledge, in consideration of the Christian orientation and character of the Hospital.
